NATHANIEL RUSSELL, also known as "Bobo" or "Bo" (hereinafter "Russell"),
PAMELA MAHEALANI NEWTON (hereinafter "Newton"), JOHN CORNIEL, JR. (hereinafter "Corniel"), knowingly and intentionally conspired with each other and with other persons known and unknown to the grand jury, to distribute and to possess with intent to distribute five-hundred (500) grams or more of a mixture or substance containing a detectable amount of methamphetamine, its salts, isomers, and salts of its isomers, a Schedule II controlled substance,

A violation of Title 21, United States Code, Section 841(a)(1).

Ways and Means:

The instant conspiracy involved the distribution of methamphetamine on the Island of Maui, under the supervision of defendant Russell and his wife, defendant Newton. Defendant Leo Gomez, who resided in Las Vegas, Nevada, supplied methamphetamine to the other co-conspirators. Defendants Sullivan and Gilbert Gomez, also Las Vegas residents, assisted Leo Gomez in the distribution of methamphetamine. Defendant Corniel served an intermediate role on Maui, arranging with Leo Gomez and Sullivan for the replenishment of the conspiracy's methamphetamine inventory and distributing the methamphetamine to their customers on Maui. Defendants Farren and Bates were the main customers. Defendant Cyrinah Aken assisted the other conspirators in various ways, as holding the purchase money to acquire the methamphetamine, handling some of the finances, and also contacting Leo Gomez. The methamphetamine would be delivered from Las Vegas to Maui either by being transported by courier or being sent via small parcel/cargo carriers. Defendant Reed Aken was a courier who transported the drug purchase money from Maui to Las Vegas and then returned back to Maui with methamphetamine.
